 Government bonds were quiet, dull and steady, uctuating but little and seeming to have lost speculative interest for the present. The London price quotation on both sides of the ocean are such as to keep the foreign bankers from buying. As to the London price, its steadiness as well as that of conby the Bank of England suggests the inference that financial circles in the British capital are just as much in the dark as ourselves concerning the ex-tent of the difficulties in Paris. There is an evident distrust in the English mind of the proceedings of the past week in that city of revolutions and barricades, and hence the lack of buoyancy and animation which should follow so important a change as that in the discount rate. The following were the closing street quotations:-United States sixes, 1881, registered, 116% a 117; do., do., coupon, 121 a 121%; do., five-twenties, registered, 116½ a 117; do. do., coupon, 1862, 12235 a 12234; do. do., coupon, 1864, 11734 a 11734; do. do., coupon, 1865, 118% a 118%; do. do., coupon, 1865, new, 119% a 119%; do. do., coupon, 1867, 119% a 119%; do. do., coupon, 1888, 119% a 119%; do., tenforties, registered, 107% a 107%; do. do., coupon, 108% a 108%; currency bonds, 106% a 106.

The gold market was very steady, the extreme fluctuations during the session of the board being three-eighths per cent. The figures at the Clearing House indicate an increase of the short interest, which is put out very probably against the heavy government disbursements of gold interest in July, but the tone of the market is very strong under the present aspect of the foreign exchanges and through an indefinable belief that the troubles in France are really more serious than the Emperor's censors will permit to be told. Again, it is evident that President Grant must soon recognize the Cuban belligerents, ment or difficulty so far as the United States is conthe premium. The course of the market is shown in Cash gold was in so excessive supply and the deand for currency so great that in early transaction 5-64 was paid for carrying to Monday. Before Clearing House there was a moderation to 1-16 and even 7 per cent, while in the afternoon 6 and 5 per cent were paid, with exceptions at "flat." The Ville de Paris took out $200,000 in specie. The disbursements of coin interest amounted to $17,684. The following is the report of the Gold Exchange Bank:-

Foreign exchange was dull after the steamer, but

The slock market was again buoyant and cheerful, with Pacific Mall, New York Central and the North western stocks as the leatures, but was rather dull in consequence of the absence of many prominent operators at the Jerome Park races. There was very fair animation, however. Vice President Colfax was a visitor during the forenoon and made a snort speech to the "buils" and "bears," which was re-ceived with great merriment and cheering. New York Central advanced to 192 and Pacific Mail to 90%. The reason assigned for the rise in the latter was an abatement of rates by the Panama Railroad Company; but it is evident that the stock has been heavily oversold, and hence a scramble among the shorts to cover. Mariposa preferred advanced to 19. There is also a heavy short interest in this stock, The raid extended to the certificates, which were inproperty, the "bears" not understanding that the ttle to the entire Mariposa estate and property is vested in trustees, and can only revert to the company after the holders of these certificates have been pan) off at par, with ten per cent interest from the 1st of July last. The certificates were issued in ex-change for the first mortgage bonds of the company on the payment of a cash bonus. They reacted to-day and closed about 47 bid. The bank statement was preceded by some depression in the prices of the general dist, while considerable confusion existed as to the extent of the specie increase. The first report was over two millions, on which there was renewed buoyancy, and the feeling once started did not change when the definite amount was subse quently stated. A small failure took place to-day, and stocks were bought in under the rule,

The owners of Eric Railway stock in London have determined to see if an organization on their part can restore the prestige of their investment. but the scheme is deemed premature by the London Economist:—

The length of road which would yet have to be made on such a line is about 3,000 miles, about double the length of that link between Omaha and San Francisco, by which the Americans have just completed their Atlantic and Pacific route. It is true that in some respects the conditions of such a line would be better. There is an enormous existing population, as well as a population to be created, to be served by it along the line; and the trade between the extermities to be created is infinitely greater. But progress per saltum is not desirable, and it has yet to be shown that commercially and economically the Atlantic and Pacific line was a profitable expenditure of United States capital. The case is different with regard to one of the projects referred to—the Euphrates Valley Railway—which would be a manageable single work, and would save between a third and a fourth of the present mail distance between London and Bombay. This is something worth striving after, and it might be accomplished very quickly, owing to the special facilities offered by the course of the Euphrates for commencing the works at various points. The demand for it for international purposes, with Eastern trade increasing, and the extension of railway facilities, both in Europe and in India, may now be considered targent, and we should expect some portion of it at least to be speedily undertaken.

REAL ESTATE MATTERS.

Mr. Hamilton, of Hamilton Park, New Brighton, Staten Island, advertises a portion of his estate for sale by auction on the 22d. Very many of the preudices that have existed against the Island have been overcome by the persistent efforts of the residents to secure perfect drainage and to generally improve their property, and to remove nuisances When the last and greatest in this category, Swin-burne the Health Officer, has gone, as he soon will, burne the Health Officer, has gone, as he soon will, with his yellow flag, gentiemen will find that a large number of New Yorkers, tired of brick and mortar, and anxious to breathe a freer air, will be ready and anxious to purchase in that beautiful locality. Let the sales go on, but be sure to put out Swinburne.

On Thursday Idiewild, the home of the late N. P. Willis, situated at Cornwall, on the Hudson, was soid by his widow to Thomas George, County Judge of Orange, for $3,000. The grounds comprise about lifty acres, and were purchased by Mr. Willis in 1850. He erected his residence there in the year following. Since the poet's death the place has been for several years devoted by Mrs. Willis to the purposes of a boarding school. It is at present occupied by Mr. Burdock, of New York city. The spot is one of the most beautiful and romantic scenery. Judge George's estate now comprises about 1,200 acres, all situated in the town of Cornwall and in the immediate vicinity of Idlewild. Mrs. Willis will take up her abode at Cambridge, Mass.

THE MURDER OF MR. WOODALL.

No Clue to the Perpetrator-Post-Mortem

As yet the murder of Mr. French P. Woodall, the gentleman who was found floating at the foot of Whitehall street with his skull crushed in, as heretofore reported in the HERALD, remains a mystery, but the police authorities are actively engaged in they have no clue to work upon, and consequently are groping in the dark. The ingenuity of the detectives detailed to unravel the mystery, it is to be hoped, may prove successful. The friends of Mr. Woodall strongly incline to the belief that a despera do, learning that he had money in his possession, decoyed him to a secluded spot near the river, murpitched overboard. But this, of course, is mere conjecture. Below will be found the testimony of Dr. Beach, who made a post-mortem examination of the jecture. Below will be found the testimony of Dr. Beach, who made a post-mortem examination of the body of deceased:—

Wooster Beach, M. D., being sworn, says:—Have made a post-mortem examination of the body of French F. Woodall, at 251 Bowery; it was much swolen and in an advanced state of decomposition; on the left side of the head, commencing at a point about two and a half inches above the eye and extending almost directly backwards to the back part of the head, was a severe wound, dividing the integument, fracturing the bone beneath and lacerating the tissue; the fracture involved portions of the frontal, parietal, temporal and occupital bones; was about six moleca in length and two in breadth, the bones included in this space being broken into fragments; the cut through the integument was clean and straight, and was of less length than the fractured bone; incre was another wound of the left eye and eyebrow, which appeared to have been made after death; the dress was not disarringed nor torn, excepting a tear on the right leg of the pants and beneath the drawers; the brain was much softened from decomposition but appeared as if it had been partially covered on its surface with effused blood; from the appearance of the first mentioned wound I am of opinion that it was made by a very heavy blow of some round instrument, apparently a thick har of fron; death must have followed instantly upon its infliction; judging from the appearance of the tooly I am of opinion its must have been in the water about one week.

For the present no time will be named for continuing the inquisition.

SUBURBAN INTELLIGENCE.

Jersey City.
THE ERIE MEN AFTER THE HORSE RAILROADS. Messrs. Fisk and Gonid having established a ferry to Twenty-third street, and intending to open one from Twenty-third street, and intending to open one from that place to Wechawken, are endeavoring to control the passenger traffic of Hudson county by getting possession of the horse railroads. They own the Pavonia Horse Railroad, which extends from the Pavonia ferry to the liackensack river, and negotiations are in progress for the consolidation of this line with the Jersey City and Hoboken Railroad. They have also made advances towards the Hudson City and Jersey City Railroad, but the Jersey City and Bergen Railway Company will not part with this on any terms unless the Bergen, Lafayette and dummy roads be taken in. It is but too notorious that the horse railroads from Jersey City terry to Hoboken, Bergen and Hudson City are so badly managed that the proposed change of masters would be halled with satisfaction by the travelling public. The Eric managers have already conferred great benefits on Hudson county, and if they should take the management of the horse railroads into their hands it would be all the better for the people. Mayor Sawyer, of Hudson City, and several prominent men are strongly in favor of the change.

HONORS TO VICE PRESIDENT COLFAX.—This pic-turesquely situated town was the scene of great excitement last Friday evening, the occasion being the United States, the joint guest of Mayor George T. Cobb and Hon. John Hill, member of Congress from the rourth district. While Mr. Colfax was being handsomely entertained at the palatial residence of Mayor Cobb by the latter and other distinguished Morristonians, including Governor Eandolph and Mr. John Whitehead, a body of the citizens, to the number of about 500, formed in procession, and, with a fine brass band, marched to the Mayor's house and serensded the Vice President. After the rendaison of several fine national airs Mr. Coffax was introduced to the assemblage by Governor Randolph, who, in doing so, took occasion to make a lew appropriate remarks, in the course of which he jocularly set forth that inasmuch as Mr. Coffax was half a Jerseynaan, through whose veins coursed the blood of Jersey heroes, they had especial claims on him. In replying the Vice President said he was the victim of misplaced confidence; that he had been invited there and had accepted, with the understanding that there was to be no demonstration of any kind, no speeches or bands; but, believing that subordination was the first duty of a soldier, he would obey the commands of the commander-in-chief of the forces—military and naval—of the State of New Jersey. Mr. Coffax then went on to describe his "happy hours of childhood" passed in Pompton and his after life in the Far West, in language at once pleasing and eloquent, after which he glanced at the great future before the American people, and wound up with an earnestly expressed hope for the prosperity of the nation. The distinguished speaker was repeatedly cheered. Yesterday morning he left for New York. handsomely entertained at the palatial residence of

The guard sprung for his revolver, which was lying a few feet distant, but ere it was secured the flying convict had disappeared in the darkness. An alarm was raised, but to no purpose. It is generally believed that the escaped man is none other than the one who, having feigned illness, secreted himself, as reported in the Herald of last Monday. A reward by some king was once offer'd, we're told,
To whoe'er could invent a new bilas for mankind;
But take of new pleasures—give me but the old,
And I'll leave your inventors all new once they find.
This sparkling sentiment of Tom Moore's poetic soul rushed unbidden to the lip on viewing the grand coup d'æil presented by the Park yesterday afternoon. And indeed was the day a most beautiful one, tempting every human creature whom dire ture forth into the bright, balmy sunshine of nature and the people's garden, the city's Park, and enjoy s few hours relaxation from the cares and toils and burdens of life. The mid-June sun was not the flery Sol as we have oft known him before; his burning rays were tempered by a cooling breeze and a morning shower, which unitedly rendered the day the more enticing, the more refreshing and the more exhilarating. The Park itself, owing to the re-cent rains and the short but quite effective shower of the morn, looked more delightful and fresh than usual at this season and the clean cut grass of the meadows, most of which were liberally thrown open to the public yesterday as "common" property, in-vited all, old and young, maid and groom, bearded and beardless youths, to a ramble and a tumble, and beardless youths, to a ramble and a tumbet, a seat and a lounge, for rest as well as play.

And the people enjoyed it all. Not less than 100,000, and probably a much larger number, visited the Park yesterday. The rich and wealthy, in their stylish equipages, thronged the carriageways, intermingled with those of less pretensions in hired coaches. The newly introduced park carriages a sort of oven phasely. duced park carriages, a sort of open phaeton omnibuses, were in full demand, while ladies and genomnibuses, were in full demand, while ladies and gentiemen on horseback crowded the rides. But these gave only additional zest, ser ved as a kind of modera staffage to the grand picture which bounte ous old Dame Nature unrolled before our eyes while introducing us to her endless beauties and to the artiess ways and characteristic peculiarities of the great mass of the people. And these were there in almost countees numbers, covering every seat on the benches under and around the tents erected in the neighborhood of Dodworth's pavilion to fisten to the strains of his orchestra; sitting in the shadquader the trees, with their children around them, chatting and mirthful, some love-making, some taking of past and present pleasures, and all merry and happy in the enjoyment of a few hours of God's pure air and the hallowing surroundings of undeilled nature. And the Terrace was as crowded and the lake filled with the trim boats, between which the swans glided majestically, gracefuly picking up a crumb here and their thrown them. And the Ramble was crowded. And here could be seen a stream of Germans and their families wending almost pionsly their way to the statue of Schiller, telling their youngsters of the many beautiful songs he wrote in their dear old Fatheriand, which spoke to the heart because they came from the heart, and many recited passages and some even whole poems of Schiller to the edification of their hearers. Only one old curmudgeon of a bachelor, on seeing so many happy and beautiful faces around him, declaimed with envious meaning.

The play grounds were filled all day with youth, giving themselves up entirely to the "national game", of base ball on the boys' ground, or to croquet upon the lawn set apart for the grifs. The refreshment saloons, the beautiful new krosk dedicated to dealing out fresh and healthy mineral waters, indeed wherever there was a place to sit, to walk to lie down, to roil and tumble on the grass, to talk, play and be merry, was filled by people of all classes and sexes, anxious not to let a minute pass unimproved and unenjoyed.

But, with the orchestra and all other attractions of the Park, the collection of specimens from the animal kingdom divided the attention of the people, and among these it was the huge elephant whom to see most people desired. He is indeed a ponderous animal, weigning no less than seven and a half tons. His breakfast, at eight o'clock in the morning, was remarkable to witness. Twenty-four loaves of bread and a bale of hay were almost as nothing to his appetite. His customary morning abiution he performed also in a peculiar way. His keeper mounted on his back, took him out on the lawn, and, a hose in his hands, he let go the "Croton" on his hide from a three-fourth of an inch nozzle, which seemed to please the huge monster hugely. In the afternoon he wat again brought out upon the lawn in frout of the Arsenal, where at times there were 10,000 people congregated, and never less than 5,000, to have a view of him. The keeper, a good natured Teuton from the South of Germany, though actired in Greek costume, led him around by directing him with a steel pointed stick; and at this time the docility and perfect tameness of the giant snimal was fully illustrated. With his himber trunk he felt through the row of persons nearest the fence wherever he caught a glance of an orange, an apple, a cage or sugar-plum, and even from the hands of a child he took it so nimbly as if he had the tenderness of a lady's hand in the points of his ponderous proboscis.

Thus the people of New York, those at least who could spare the afternoon and had no other engagement for outdoor sport, enjoyed the afternoon yesterday in their own public garden—the Central Park.

First of all, we are told that the responsibility of ministers will be personal, and not general. To a certain extent the Chamber will have the right of introducing laws of reform. Ministers will be selected from among the Deputies. We think that we can safely state that the Emperor is determined to proceed in his liberal path. Since the 25th of May his Majesty has been perpetually occupied in receiving and consulting liberals.
